About the International Area Studies Review

Worldwide location research evaluation (IASR) is the quarterly peer-reviewed guide of the center for global vicinity research at Hankuk college of overseas research, Seoul, and the Peace studies Institute Oslo (PRIO).

IASR publishes excessive excellent theoretical, analytical, and empirical works on worldwide politics, economics, way of life, sociology, law and the arts contributing to the improvement of international location research. The IASR actively encourages both principle-oriented and applied studies to assist near the space among pure concept and practice.

IASR stands by myself because the vicinity research journal that is sincerely global in perspective.

Approximately the Societies:

The center for global vicinity studies (CIAS) is a non-profit studies group installed in 1993 and backed through Hankuk university of foreign research, Seoul (HUFS). CIAS has 12 affiliated region studies institutes and coordinates their research works.

Hankuk college of overseas studies (HUFS) is Korea's main higher schooling organization in foreign language research and foreign affairs.

The Peace research Institute Oslo (PRIO) is a non-earnings studies group set up in 1959, whose overarching purpose is to conduct studies at the conditions for non violent relations between states, businesses and people. The institute is independent, global and interdisciplinary, and explores problems related to all facets of peace and warfare. To stay on the cutting fringe of peace research, PRIO is both proactively involved in figuring out new developments in global conflict, and oriented toward formulating and documenting new understandings and responses.
