About the International Journal of Cultural Studies Magazine Subscriptions

Worldwide Journal of Cultural Studies is a main setting for grant focused on reconsidering social practices, cycles, writings and foundations past conventional public systems and local predispositions. Set up to revive social examinations against the perils of parochialism and scholarly solidification, the diary questions what culture implies, and what culture does, across worldwide and nearby sizes of force and activity, various advancements and types of intervention, and numerous components of execution, experience and character. Worldwide Journal of Cultural Studies gives a basic space to hypothetical and methodological advancement in worldwide social exploration.

"From first individuals' web to Hong Kong's imaginative ventures, no better pilgrims of sweat-soaked clubs and social approach direct us through the wildernesses of contemporary culture than the supporters of IJCS" – Sean Cubitt, Goldsmiths, University of London, UK

"IJCS is the spot to be the point at which you need to take part in significant scholarly discussions on media and culture; it's the worldwide field of scholarly trade you can't bear to miss" – José van Dijck, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands
