About the International Journal of High Performance Computing Applications

The International Journal of High Performance Computing Applications gives an enthusiastic discussion to the correspondences of unique exploration papers and opportune survey articles on the utilization of supercomputers to tackle complex displaying issues in a range of controls.

The accentuation will be on encounters with the utilization of supercomputers instead of on the composition of computational outcomes exceptional to a particular examination point. Programming procedures that apply to classes of issues frequently cross orders; articles should zero in on the trading of such strategies, just as present techniques for investigating, estimating and applying calculations and arrangement plans identified with specific application territories.
