About the International Review of Victimology

The International Review of Victimology is the main worldwide companion surveyed diary for victimological research, zeroing in on conventional zones of exploration and more extensive concerns, for example, political and common liberties issues.

It incorporates the casualty wrongdoer relationship, the impacts of exploitation, casualties in the criminal equity framework, compensation and compensation by guilty parties, wrongdoing anticipation for casualties, meanings of exploitation and the way of thinking of victimology. Near or global points of view are gladly received.
