About the Telecommunications

Telecommunications is an exciting branch of engineering. It unravels the marvels of modern communication technology that is growing rapidly using the advancements in Microelectronics and Computers. Telecommunication has been acknowledged as a vital ingredient of economic growth. It is to realize this growing importance of the field that IUP has come up with a quarterly journal, The IUP Journal of Telecommunications. We are sure that the academic fraternity will encourage us—as they have done in all our previous endeavors—by availing this facility for publishing their research works.
